

Remove redundant IT equipment professionally and painlessly

Vast amounts of old, unwanted and failed IT equipment sits stored in businesses and organisations throughout the UK. New legislation, such as the Hazardous Waste Regulations, mean that disposing of this equipment is now highly regulated and failure to comply can cost a business dearly.

Secure Lite provides you with a fully licensed, accredited and professional service that removes such equipment, and disposes of it in an environmentally and legally sound manner.

In a world where data security has never had more significance, electronic data, unseen and often unaccountable, sits like a time bomb on redundant technology even after many in-house erasure or formatting processes.

Changes such as the reclassification of CRT monitors, which are now hazardous material, prohibit and restrict the landfill of such equipment that must be pre-treated in accordance with strict guidelines.

Businesses need to demonstrate that they are disposing of redundant IT technology to defined standards.

Egton offers Secure Lite as a complete solution, taking away the headache from your business so that you can concentrate on your core activities.
